September Meeting Predicted to have High Attendance! CATS Prepares for Expected Flood of Membership Participation

Swanzy, NH— Sharon Wirant and Carol Armer of MHS will get together with CATS at the September 14, 2011 Member's Meeting of the Canine Agility Society. The opportunity to chat with Sharon and Carol about the ways that the MHS/CATS partnership can be leveraged to each organization's mutual benefit is expected to be a big draw.

Equally important, the chance to spend an evening with fellow CATS members planning the final details for our upcoming September CPE Agility Trial.

The membership meeting begins at 7p.m. on Wednesday, September 14 in the MHS Community Room. The MHS/CATS discussion portion of the evening will conclude at 8 p.m. CATS business will be conducted between 8 and 9 p.m. If you have new items of business that you would like to discuss, please contact Chris Frado and/or Cindy Stewart prior to the meeting to get your items on the agenda. See you there!

Hoping all our members are safe and dry following Tropical Storm Irene and the subsequent flooding!

From the President's Desk

Dear CATS,

I am so grateful and proud to be a member of our CATS Club!

The network of friends within CATS rallied for Kitty. With our help, Kitty was able to stay at home in her comfortable surroundings with her dogs. Without CATS, it would have been more difficult. Our friendships in CATS and the communication network made so much possible.

No one person did it all. It was a true team effort. We supported each other, shared information and insights, and did what we could. Without each one of you doing what you could, the totality of what CATS and Kitty's friends did for her couldn't have been done and done with seeming ease and grace.

Thank you for being good friends, good people and for being CATS members. Our Club is really something special. I hope you feel like I do.

Hugs, Chris

Kitty taught me many things. For my agility training Kitty taught me that it was OK for me to be a border collie, always ready for another try at a skill or sequence but that it wasn't right to push my dogs. She was always telling me it was time to quit and end on the positive with them wanting more instead of exhausted. Kitty was so happy when I dropped Snoop from Championship division in USDAA to Performance and supported me in that initial decision for Bingo. For my large, heavy-boned dogs this choice will help keep them athletic and enjoying agility for many years.

The most recent skill Kitty taught me was during a private lesson. Bingo and I were struggling to achieve a smooth rear cross. Kitty suggested putting a verbal cue "switch" to the rear cross. Now whether that cue helped me with my timing or triggered a response in Bingo, it didn't matter. That small tip made all the difference in Bingo's understanding of the rear cross.

I'll never forget traveling to trials with Kitty, camping together, drinking some wine, talking and laughing. We shared many mishaps together and Kitty was quick to find the humor in our escapades. It's been almost 15 years and she was still laughing last week about the time we camped during a rainstorm for a Y-Agility trial along the Potomac River on an estate. My tent just wasn't big enough for me, all my personal gear, my big wolf dog Bandit and Auggie Doggie the MHS adoptee I considered my small dog. My duffel bag got pushed against the tent side (a big camping no-no for tent etiquette and rain proofing) and consequently my white bra soaked inside a water-logged duffel bag I was using as a pillow. Kitty laughed and laughed when I had no choice but to wear the newly tie-dyed rather purple streaked bra under my white CATS t-shirt for the trial.

Kitty was the life of the party at my 50th birthday dancing to the oldies with me and telling stories. She joined me on a memorable business trip in Las Vegas where we tried to pack days of sightseeing into one long exhausting evening. We went to Washington state together on a wonderful cross country ski vacation. Driving for hours at night from the airport into the mountains Kitty finally insisted we pull off the road so she could concentrate on the Super Bowl broadcast rather than the map and directions. She was a huge Patriots fan and her team was winning. As testament to her abilities as a teacher, she was able to educate me (who only knew the football jersey colors) during that ride between plays on some of the fine points of a game I could only hear and not see.

It was a gift to both myself and Kitty that I was fortunate to spend the last 3 nights with Kitty living in her house and sitting up at night with her. In the dark Kitty told me that although she still didn't know the secrets of the universe or life, she had 66 really good years and had no regrets. Kitty loved her friends, her children, Drew & Carrie, her granddaughter Amelia and her dogs. I'm glad I was able to invite Duce and Ceiko onto the hospital bed that was installed in her TV room. When Duce settled his body alongside hers, I told Kitty that warmth was Duce and moved her good arm onto him. She opened her hand and began to massage and stroke him. That was the last conscious motion I saw Kitty make. Surely that is how Kitty wanted to die, in her home with her dog by her side and in the company of her friends and family.

So many people who loved Kitty came together doing what they could to make that possible.

No one of us could have done what we did for Kitty without the love and support of each other. Goodbye my friend. I will always love you.

— Chris Frado

Kitty was one of those unique individuals that knew it wasn't so much training the dogs as it was training the handler not to mess the dog up! She could watch a person do 5 or 6 obstacles and design a training plan to correct what the handler was doing wrong in under 15 minutes and she was always correct. She taught me to shut up while running a course, the most efficient way to manage a bullmastiff through serpentines, that each dog had an individual running style and to be successful, I needed to understand what that was and most importantly.....that Neala or Glinda or anyone else that came along wasn't Rhea and never would be and I just needed to get over that and move on..... I will truly miss Kitty and am grateful that her life crossed mine

— Jackie Smith

I did learn a lot from Kitty, but I enjoyed more, talking with her about non-dog related subjects, her walks in the woods behind her house, the plants around her house, prospects for landscaping around that huge boulder in her yard, under which, she said, horses were buried many years ago. We talked about the deer attracted to the apple tree in the back yard. One spring she witnessed the birth of a fawn right there in her back yard. There was always something.

— Steve Krulish

Darby and I began our agility career in a puppy agility class w/ Kitty in around May 2002 when Darby was just 16 weeks old. Agility was new to me and new to Darby.

We went through the ranks with Kitty from the puppy class to pre beginner, beginner, advanced beginner and then advanced classes. I do have to say that we had a few bumps in the road from puppy zoomies to cone girl. And Kitty always stood beside us w/ a positive word and approach.

I had the great surprise of Kitty writing up something for us when we got our C-ATCH.....she said she watched us grow as a team w/ my calm positive attitude and approach. All that was taught to me by Kitty. Kitty was not just an agility instructor to me she was a Friend.

Because of Kitty agility has become a love in my life.

We recently got our C-ATCH 3 and had planned on dropping Kitty a note to let her know how her “cone” girl was doing.

Thanks Kitty, you will be so missed! love,

—Karen Mockler

Kitty Lives on in Us

On Friday the 12th, when I had gotten word that Kitty had passed away, one my first thoughts after the great wave of sadness I felt was, "who will tell me when I'm running my dog to shut up? Who will tell me to keep my hands down, and that I was late on a cue or cross?" For so many years, ten and a half actually, Kitty has been the steady voice of my agility teacher (along with that of Elise Paffrath). From agility teacher, she became a friend, cherished more and more as we found the common interests of wildlife and tracking, health and natural foods, as well as our beloved dogs and agility. In the past four years, as I have grown to be a teacher of agility as well as student, Kitty has been there to help me learn to see how to help other handlers and their dogs. She has coached me and nurtured me through so much, and was one of the first people I wrote to when Skye accomplished his High in Trial in Standard and Games for Veteran dogs in his height class at the CPE 2009 Nationals. I still have, and cherish, Kitty's email to me:

Diane

CONGRATS – what an accomplishment – I'm so proud of you and Skye. I remember the first time I saw you with Skye and I said to myself, Diane will be learning so much from this dog and you certainly have!!!

Enjoy and I know you will cherish this time.

Kitty

But really, it was Kitty on my shoulder at that trial, and those runs couldn't have been done without her. Not only did I learn so much from Skye, a challenging dog to start with, but Kitty helped me learn to run him. And Pilgrim, and Star, and Lexi. All my dogs have become partners with me under Kitty's guidance.

I can answer my own question about who will tell me to shut up, and keep my hands down and that I'm late. It will be Kitty all the way. Because no matter what, Kitty is with me on every run, her voice inside my head, cheering and critiquing and laughing and sighing. And that is a great comfort to me when I think about the fact that I won't see her in physical form again. She lives on in us, every one of us, that she shared herself with. My deepest wish is that she is happy and having fun with her dogs in the land of spirit.

— Diane Gibbons

Kitty taught me many things, but the lesson that made the biggest impact was:

Kitty always had the most relaxed and inspiring classes ... Sutter (now 9yrs) & I started out training with Kitty when Sutter was a mere pup (classmates with Jill & Maggie Mae, Chris & Jake, Karen & Darby) ... to Sutter, Kitty was the "Roast-beef Lady", because she always had roast-beef end cuts from the deli as treats and Sutter would cuddle up to her leg for beef!!! In her last days, Kitty enjoyed 3 visits on the back porch with my newest pup "Emma",... when Kitty was no longer able to sit out on the back porch, lil' 12 week old Miss Emma ran right up onto the porch looking for her "Kitty visit" and when the door was left open, Emma ran right inside!

Pfoot's Emma

I was a friend of Kitty:

Not only as my girls Agility instructor and fellow CATS committee member, but more so toward the end when she was diagnosed with Cancer ... she shared the passing of each of her dogs and the significance of the "dolphin" experience in California after her disease was diagnosed ... during my 12 hour night shifts at work, I was able to be a bedside visitor during all 3 of her hospitalizations and especially at the end when she needed to make the "Hospice" decision for comfort at home in her final days, I was part of her team again :-)

Kitty and I laughed/celebrated/cried when: I always sent photos to her work computer (cell phone after she retired) to give her "a smile for the day" ... pics of my girl's antics, new pups or winnings ... she was their "Aunty Kitty" ... she lovingly volunteered to go with me to pick up Lyric's ashes after my heartbreaking loss ... she holds a special place in my heart and will be deeply missed ... she always had her thumb on the pulse of CATS and amazingly had the update on what various members were thinking ... in the course of finishing a controversial discussion, I'll miss hearing her end with "I don't know."

God must have needed an Agility instructor pretty badly over the Rainbow Bridge, to have taken her from us so soon

— pfoot

Pfoot's photo of the dogs who "attended" Kitty's Memorial Service

I have a poem first and then a thought.

“Nothing Gold Can Stay” by Robert Frost

Nature's first green is gold,
Her hardest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden sank to grief,
So dawn goes down today.
Nothing gold can stay.

Kitty, as a teenager you taught me self-confidence, and as an adult you taught me how to dance with my dog and say “no” when needed. Your passing has stunned all of us. It was way too soon, and completely unfair on all accounts. You will be remembered.

— Maggie Sergeant

During her last month, Kitty found it easier to sleep in her recliner instead of her bed. As a result, Ceiko and Duce slept on the floor by her chair. Ceiko was able to sneak some cuddle time with Kitty on the chair, but it was more difficult for Duce. Being a bigger dog, the recliner would collapse under his weight.

Wednesday night, the hospital bed arrived. Later that night, Chris Frado suddenly realized that the dogs could sleep with Kitty again. Chris called the dogs and patted the edge of the bed. Duce looked at the bed and then looked at Chris. Chris reassured him and invited him up on the bed again.

Duce hesitated and then jumped up. He stretched his body out gently against Kitty's side. Chris leaned over and told Kitty that Duce was lying beside her. Kitty reached her hand out and stroked Duce's fur and said "Oh, Ducey...".

But dogs were not the only thing Kitty enjoyed in life. For Kitty, everything in life was to be savored, to be enjoyed.

For years, I would call Kitty for her birthday. One time, I arranged to have her birthday announced in the radio. Boy, was she amazed when friends called to wish her happy birthday that year. Kitty always seemed genuinely surprised that I remember her birthday.

One year my brother, Warren and his wife met Kitty and I for dinner at the Thai restaurant (Kitty's favorite restaurant.) After dinner, we went to go see the movie Milk at the Colonial. The movie ended and the four of us walked outside under the marquee. Hugs were exchanged all around and as we said goodbye, the three of us wished Kitty "Happy Birthday" one last time. Just at that moment, a fellow rode by on his bicycle and announced it was his birthday, too. "No way!" We all talked for a couple of moments marveling at the coincidence.

But the sweet memory for me was two strangers giggling in the night and wishing each other a happy birthday as they parted ways.

The last story I will share here revolves around Chris Frado's 50th birthday. Kitty and I agreed that we wanted to do something special for Chris at her party. We drafted Elise Paffrath to join us.

We decided to create the Top Ten list for Chris. Elise, Kitty and I had lots of fun and laughs while we whittled the list down to ten items. From the very beginning I knew how we were going to end our little show. The # 1 thing about Chris was her long hair. My vision was for us to whirl our hair around in the air to the song "Hair".

Only problem, Kitty and I hadn't seen long tresses in a long, long time. What to do? Digging around in my costume supplies, I found the solution: Kitty and I waved wigs like cheerleader's pom poms while Elise swung her hair around in tune to the music. What a fun time we had.

Genevieve from Hospice told me 13 years ago that as the end nears, your loved one will give you a gift; you just have to be wise enough to appreciate it when it is given.

Kitty's last words to me on Thursday after I had re-arranged the pillows on her bed were "Thank you, Leslie."

No, no. Thank you, Kitty.

—Leslie Vassall

Announcing: The Kitty Arsenault "Spirit of Agility" Award

We are so pleased to announce the creation of a new award in honor of our dear departed friend, Kitty Arsenault. Her family has asked a select committee of agility enthusiasts to develop a criteria for an award that will be presented at a CATS event. The details are still in progress, will little solid information available at press time. However, we do know that this award will be designed to honor something more than earning a Q.

At press time, the plans for the Spirit of Agility award include its inaugural presentation at the CATS September CPE Trial.

In Memoriam: Willow

This beautiful memorial is by CATS member Mary Wakeman who said farewell to her beloved teammate, Willow, on August 9.

Journey Ends:

Her heart fluttered like the wings of a hummingbird, then beat a whisper or two or three, and quietly fluttered again. Back and forth it struggled for oxygen no longer delivered. Forced against its will to shut down, the body could no longer keep up with its zest for life. Unwilling to surrender to the hand of death it struggled against a losing battle.

Early Morning, the sun shines strong, it's going to be beautiful day. In my lap I keep vigil over your precious vessel, old, limp, and crippled with arthritis. I will sit with you in my lap, Willow, and keep watch over your body until it lets go.

Through headphones, Chris de Burgh depicts the moment in "Transmission Ends".

"Sitting here with my love tonight... And when you lie beside me soft and quite in the night,..."

Your breaths, restful and deep, ripple over a gray tongue and through flaccid jowls: Eyes vacant of life and soul. The music continues.

"I often listen to the rhythm of your heart beat giving life. You are so precious to me darling it will always be that way until the final act is over, until every man has spoken, until every battle is done, until every summer is gone, until the day ... " This part played over and over as a broken record, it is too explicitly descriptive of situation at hand.

7:19 AM Willow, with a stretch, gasps for air, begins to let go. Nine minutes later the rhythm of her heart stops giving life and our journey together during this moment in time sadly comes to an end.

August 9, 2011 7:28 AM - She died embraced in my arms where her life once began fifteen years ago.

Journey Begins:

May 30, 1996 3:15 AM

She squirmed across the sheet, struggled in darkness, driven by instinct, the last puppy born edged closer to my armpit. Marveled by her strength, beauty and exquisite perfectly formed miniature canine features. The puppy nudged my armpit in search for sustenance. Like a butterfly kiss, it tickled. I savored this delicate moment. Gently I wrapped my fingers about the tender life form and plugged her onto her mother's nipple along with eight other siblings. Seconds old and we already had a soul touching moment and to think her first scent of this world, my armpit. I liked this one instantly.

Sometime during the early morning we finally all slept. In the stillness and silence of that May spring dawn a new journey began to unfold... "

That was how Willow and I first met.

Willow is the sweetest, most gentle dog and my soul's companion. We have been separated only one night during her entire lifetime, we have traveled together everywhere from Maine to Connecticut, to errands around town, walks daily in the woods, through fields of joy and over craggy rocks in Maine. Our connection so close we hear one another's thoughts; her constant vigil has saved me many times

All that lies between is a lifetime of stories of endearing moments to fill a heart of with love, laughter, tears, sadness, joy, adventures of sport and wonder.

I will miss you Willow Love, the dog whose soul came to stay.

NEWS You CAN USE

Moving for Mowing

Sandbags....when moving equipment for mowing it isn't necessary to put the sandbags in the cabinet. They just get taken out the next day or so. Placing them along the fence line is sufficient..

Tunnels....there is no right or wrong way to leave the tunnels. They don't need to be face down at the ends. They can be left "open" or tipped face down, as you please.

Atomic dogwalk....after moving the dogwalk for mowing, it isn't necessary to place the wings/ramps in the down & locked position. The ramps can be left up until the next day when it's moved back to a working position.

A-frame....when moving for mowing, it can be left on the mover until it is moved into a working position
